Short Term Goal

LOOKING FOR JOB OPPORTUNITIES?

Many companies, unions and local governments are committed to hiring. They have pledged to reduce barriers to employment by not inquiring about criminal records until late in the hiring process. These organizations are committed to helping you and have taken the White House Fair Chance Business Pledge to help all members of our community find employment and get a chance to change their lives.

LOOKING FOR A JOB?
Please follow the links below to find information about job openings for companies that pledged to not inquire about criminal records until late in the hiring process.

Initial population potentially eligible for legal relief	15,329
Probationers who received legal relief (as of 9/1/16)	11,167
Probationers who received legal relief and discharged from supervision	10,603
Probationers who filed for legal relief but remain under supervision	564
Current Probationer population (as of 9/31/16)	45,697

PROPOSITION 47: STATUS REPORT

TASKFORCE 4: METRICS

- Identifying a “Prop 47 case” is complicated and there is no universal definition
 - Detailed case and offender specific factual data is required
 - IT systems do not capture such data
- DA caseload impact Post-Prop 47:
 - Decrease in adult felonies (require fewer resources)
 - Increase in serious/violent felonies (require greater resources)
 - Increase in adult misdemeanors
 - Insignificant impact on all juvenile cases
- Prop 47 direct increase to DA workload:
 - November 2014 - August 2016: 56,689 petitions/applications
 - DA paralegals are tracking Prop 47 application/petition workload.
 - Prosecutorial duty – Exclude ineligible serious/violent offenders

PROPOSITION 47: STATUS REPORT

12

- Challenges:
 - Privacy and confidentiality restrictions between criminal justice, health, and social services
 - Metrics collection and data analytics
- Progress to date:
 - Prop 47 potential client database (519,000 individuals)
 - Client referral data exchange system between 211 and County departments
 - Tracking Superior Court Prop 47 statistics
 - Integration of the Justice Automated Information Management System (JAIMS) with Countywide Master Data Management (CWMDM) systems

13

- Challenges to Identifying Prop 47 SUD Clients
 - DPH does not have access to offender source list
 - Confidentiality restrictions and clients' potential aversion to self-report
- Protocols Established to Identify Prop 47 Clients
 - Revised and expanded the target population to be served under existing AB 109 treatment contracts
 - Effective September 1, 2016, DPH added a tracking variable to LACPRS to identify self-reported Prop 47 clients

14

- DMH records and case management systems do not contain criminal history information to identify who is a Prop 47 client. Only a small subset of AB109 clients with a probation condition of mental health treatment (X85) who are resentenced or reclassified as Prop 47 can be identified.

AB109 Clients - Probation Supervision Terminated

Total # of X85 clients terminated since November 2014:	3,010
of X85 clients who terminated due to Prop. 47:	528 (17.5%)

184 clients continued services post-Prop 47 termination (3+ contacts)

PROP 47 VICTIMS SERVICES REPORT

15

- Potential number of Prop 47 victims: 335,554 cases including 627,390 charges (per ISAB database)
 - Mandated Marsy's Law rights notification letters sent to victims
 - Bureau of Victims Services is tracking 211 referrals.
- Prop 47 victims are not within the funding services mandate.
 - No funding was allocated for services for Prop 47 victims.
- Prop 47 reductions from felonies to misdemeanors cause victims to incur additional burden and expenses to collect restitution. In addition, restitution fines are cut in half
- DA recommends:
 - Restitution collection system for misdemeanor offenses
 - Assistance to victims enforcing restitution orders in civil court
 - Free parking and in-court interpreter services for crime victims
